(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) NORFOLK, VA., June 5.—The sale of B. C. Colonna's water front property, twenty-one acres of land, to-day to W Harry Brown, of Pittsburg, for more than $60,000, is evidence that the Tidewater road has bought the Norfolk and Southern, called the little nugget, because of the profit it returns. The cause of the profit it returns. The Tidewater had an option on the Colonna property on the eastern branch of the Elizabeth River, opposite Norfolk, which was released so soon as the sale of the rallway was announced. The option was held till the Norfolk and Southern yielded. Thus the Tidewater has secured deep water at Seawell's Point and Cape Henry, homes in Berkley and Norfolk, rights over the Belt Line, and thereby checkmated the Pennsylvania Rallroad here in the acquisition of deepwater and coal and grain shipping facilities.

Seawell's Point and Cape Henry are both nearer the ocean than the Lambert's Point piers of the Norfolk and Western, and the Norfolk and Southern has not only the terminal facilities needed by the Tidewater, but it has a profitable business of its own.

George Brown, a farmer of Deep Creek, while exploring a section of the Dismal Swamp yesterday, discovered a skeleton of a man. With the bones there was a piece of cloth that once formed a pair of trousers, and with this Mr. Brown commenced an investigation. Richard Cooper, a colored man of Deep Creek, disappeared two years ago, and his widow identified the cloth as a portion of his trousers.

It is supposed that Cooper either met with an accident or lost his way in the swamp, as there was no reason for his leaving home, nor any suspicion that he met with foul play.

Rev. E. W. Stone preached to large congregations at Immanuel Baptist Church on Sunday. At the morning service there were three additions by letter. At night Mr. Stone spoke on "Great Things." taking his text from Jeremiah 323. He said in part:

"In the light of the trath the greatest thing in the world is the human soul. It is the life in man. It is that part of him which thinks and feels and loves and acts. It is God in him, that which dishing guishes him from all other living beings. No one has ever seen or handled it. Yel it is just as real as the body it moulds and sways. It is great in its ilkeness to God. It is his image in man—a spark of his life Incarnated in him. Marred as it has been by sin, there still remain traces of its God-likeness. It is great in the duration of its existence. If the Seriptures he not a lie, it does not die with the body. The grave is not its goal. Philosophy and seclence will never permanently unsettle man's faith in its immortality. The belief in it is universal. The hope of it isn nate to the human breast. God will no mock the hope he giveth.' It is great is value. What shall it profit a man it he gain the whole world and lose his sul? God gave his only begotten son to a life seatmant of its value. May He give to each of us some just appreciation of its greatess and worth."

Continuing, the speaker said: The greatest of all God's work for man is salvation. The greatest institution in the world is the Christistian church. And the greatest of all God's work for man is salvation. The greatest institution in the world is the Christistian church. And the greatest of all God's work for man is salvation. Several Months' Discussion.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

CHARLOTTESVILLE, VA., June 5.—

After a lengthy and spirited discussion, running over several months, the students of the various departments of the University of Virginia have at last declared in favor of the cap and gown. The academic class was the last to fall in line. The advocates of the custom is accepted generally as the proper one on certain occasions; that it is more simple and more in accord with democratic principles than the dress suit, and that the dignity of the occasion actually demands it. The graduating classes of the university will, therefore, appear for the first time in cap and gown at the approaching finals.
